a fair salary at a place where many other girls were at the same work as herself.

Six months more passed. She and Madge White still clung together.

Madge was her closest, almost her only friend, for the rest seemed to have forgotten her or at least to overlook her.

Even Aunt Bess seemed to have no time for her. She wrote that she was worn to a frazzle between Marjorie's debut and Ellen's engagement. Well, it did not matter, of course, but had it not been for Madge Bess could hardly have endured her life sometimes.

At the end of six months Home Bess, her father's old attorney, sought her out and asked her to accept a position as his secretary.

"Miss Pace is going to be married," he said. "She leaves the first of the month. She is an expert, and I gave her $15 a week, but you may have the same if you will come."

"Oh, Mr. Baird, how good you are!" Bess cried. Fifteen dollars a week! meant as much to her as $1,500 had once upon a time.

Two weeks later she was installed in his office and was making herself as invaluable to him as his former secretary had done. Glad simply in blue her hair very smooth, not a gleam of gold, not a streak of ribbon about her she sat each day before the massive office typewriter playing the keys with swift precision or making potboilers upon a pad at the old lawyer's dictation.

One morning as she sat thus at work alone the door opened and a man entered—a man whom she had not seen in two years, since that last evening she had danced with him and he had gone away without saying a single thing she had expected him to say.

She felt the color leaving her face, she felt a tremor seize her, but she made a brave stand in spite of all.

Her year, as a wage earner had taught her more self command than all the other years of her life put together.

"Miss Pryor!" he exclaimed. "In the name of all that is wonderful, what are you doing here?"

It was just like him to say that, and she could not help him to say that, a little at his too evident amazement.

"Just earning my living, if you please, Mr. Baird," she replied.

"And is that necessary?"

"Most necessary. Did you ever hear the old story of the prodigal son, Mr. Baird?"

He nodded, watching her earnestly.

"Well, Bess went on, a little breathlessly, 'like him, I have wasted my substance until I must earn if I would eat. I've been a business woman for a year, and I'm beginning to like it even better than being a society girl. Ah, here comes Mr. Baird,' as the old lawyer entered."

His entrance ended their conversation for that day, but soon after Brent came again.

Being a lawyer himself and upon very good terms with Mr. Baird, it was easy for him to frame excuses for frequent calls.

"So you like doing this?" he said one day, standing beside her and looking down at her shining fingers. She looked up at him tri-dly.

"Yes, indeed. I never knew what it was to live until now. I only wish I had got to work sooner."

He waited awhile. They were alone in the office, and in the silence the clatter of the typewriter keys sounded startlingly loud.

"I suppose," he said finally, "that you are so in love with your work here that nothing could induce you to make a change. And yet I have been thinking that I could offer you a position rather better than this if you cared to accept it."

"But I'm not sure that it would be fair to Mr. Baird to leave him. He has been very good to me," Bess said.

"You don't understand," Brent said, speaking very low and leaning over her. "This is a permanent position—that of being my wife."

"I'd given up ever expecting to hear that from you," Bess said a little later. "Why didn't you tell me it that summer at Lenox or the winter before in Boston?"

"Because, my dear," Brent said, "I'm a sane man, and no matter how much I cared for a woman I would never marry her were she not the right sort. I didn't see in the frivolous girl you were then the makings of a good wife for me. So, though I was strongly tempted, I went away without speaking."

"Then I played the prodigal daughter to good advantage, after all," Bess said mischievously. "If my money had held out this would never have happened. But how do you know that my old habits may not return?"

"How? Because you have learned your lesson well. And anyway, the role of prodigal daughter, as you call it, never suited you so well as—"

"My present one?"

"No; as your future one as my wife will suit you."

Sick Convicts' Excuses.

One of the first duties I fulfilled as a superintendence was the care and control of prisoners "down for the night."

Convicts complaining of sickness are allowed to leave their cells during their dinner hour and form up in a long rank outside the medical officer's room, into which they enter and state their cases in rotation. Many of the prisoners' complaints and requests at the doctor's desk are extremely funny and grotesque.

"Please, sir, I've got a bad heart!" one man says lustily.

"I know you have," the doctor replies, with a laugh. "If you had a good one you would not be in all probability, have seen a prison doctor."

"Would you be so kind, doctor," the next man says persuasively, "to let me have one or two of your sanctimonious pills?"—London Tit-Bits.

Value of Laughter.

"Having valuably tried many and various remedies to restore to health a business man whom I know and who had fallen into a morbid condition owing to years of overwork, a famous Baltimore physician at last persuaded his patient to take a course of funny stories, one of each meal, with an extra two at dinner," said a Baltimore man. "The patient, a somnolent and gloomy fellow, at first rebelled, but finally, falling in with the idea, adopted the course recommended and was in the end restored to health, the effect of laughter being entirely to change his mental and bodily condition. Laughter, in fact, is one of the cheapest and most effective of medicines, bringing a stimulation of mind and body and inducing a healthy vibration through the system. There is very little to matter with the man who can enjoy a hearty laugh."—Nashville Tennessean.

Taunting Him.

It was house-leaving time, and Mr. Stubb was removing the dusty pictures from the walls. The frames slipped, the staphylococcus cracked out, and the perspiration rolled from Mr. Stubb's brow. In the humor to bite a nail in half, he turned and discovered Mrs. Stubb laughing.

"That's it!" he roared as the step-ladder swayed. "Laugh and show your gold teeth."

And still she laughed.

"Do you think there is anything funny in my moving these pictures?" he spluttered in fury.

"No, indeed, John," said Mrs. Stubb soothingly; "but, you know, you look so funny it looks like a moving picture show."

Then Mr. Stubb swallowed a pint of dust and simply fumed.—Chicago News.

Wrong Diagnosis.

A song with the title "There's a Sigh In the Heart" was sent by a young man to his sweetheart, but the paper fell into the hands of the girl's father, a very unsentimental physician, who exclaimed:

"What wretched, unscientific stuff is this? Who ever heard of such a case?"

He wrote on the outside:

"Mistaken diagnosis; no sigh in the heart possible. Sighs relate almost entirely to the lungs and diaphragm!"

Lucky.

Little Walter was whispering into the ear of his dog.

"What are you saying to Rover, dear?" asked his mother.

"Oh, I was just telling him how lucky he was," replied Walter, "cause he didn't have to have his neck washed and his hair combed or go to school."—Chicago News.

An Inflection.

"Your tickets were complimentary, were they not?"

"Well," replied the man who had seen a painfully amateur entertainment, "I thought they were until I saw the show."

Social Progress.

"The Filters are getting on rapidly, aren't they?"

"Indeed, yes. They used to employ a washwoman, but now they have a laundress."—Woman's Home Companion.

Why He Is Solid.

"How can you tell he is solid with the firm? Does he come in late and go away early?"

"No, he comes in early and goes away late."—Buffalo Express.

The Board of Supervisors at a meeting held on Monday last shortened the open season for deer in this county from November 1st to October 1st.

Louis Maury has sold his 2-acre home place near Varano Station to Anthony Parente, one of the Parente Brothers who own the adjoining summer resort.

Green's new sanitarium on Broadway is now completed and ready for occupancy. It is a handsome building and will be open for patients next week.

A ladies minstrel troupe has been organized in this place and will give a performance in Union Hall for the benefit of the Plaza fund the latter part of this month.

The concert and social hop given in Union Hall last Tuesday evening by the Masonic Home Boys Band was a social and financial success. The large hall was crowded to the doors by an appreciative audience as the boys gave a very creditable musical concert.

Vannucchi's Varano Villa

The club house for Vannucchi's Villa at Varano station is nearing completion and it will be thrown open to the public on July 31st. It is a handsome building and the hotel, which will be built later on, will be in keeping with the club house, which is one of the most attractive in the valley. Paul Vannucchi, well-known in business circles in San Francisco, is the owner, and he will spare neither pains nor expense in making his place one of the swell resorts of Sonoma Valley. He has already expended thousands of dollars in the place and will spend many more on the hotel and grounds which will surround it.

District Fair to Be Held in
Santa Rosa

The directors of the old Sonoma and Marin Agricultural District Fair Association had a conference on Monday last with a committee from the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce, in regard to reviving the Fair this season. The conference ended in adopting a resolution favoring the holding of the Fair in Santa Rosa the first week in October.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG.

SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT IN

GRAHAM CANYON

Big Hotel Bus Tips Over and

Quite a Number of People

Suffer Broken Limbs

On Tuesday afternoon last while a big bus load of summer visitors to this valley was descending the Graham canyon grade, the brake broke and forced the vehicle onto the horses. This frightened the animals and the driver with a useless brake lost all control of the animals, and they plunged madly down the steep grade and striking an obstruction the bus, which contained about eighteen women and children, was tipped over and the occupants were hurled to the ground.

Two lady visitors from San Francisco were seriously hurt, one having an arm broken and the other a rib. The only man in the bus beside the driver, who also hailed from the metropolis, suffered a fractured rib. Mrs. Jas. C. O'Rourke and baby, of this place were among the passengers aboard the bus when it tipped over but fortunately were not in the least injured. The bus was completely wrecked and quite a number of the party, aside from those mentioned above, were bruised and shaken up. Dr. Thomson was summoned and attended to the hurts of the injured.

Will Take Unto Himself a Bride

The engagement of Arthur Batto to Miss Leonie Groskopf has been announced. The wedding will take place in San Francisco in the near future. The groom in prospective is a member of the well-known commission house of John Batto & Sons of Sonoma and Vineburg. The bride-to-be is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Groskopf of Vineburg, pioneer residents of this valley.

Brevities.

The Chamber of Commerce held its monthly meeting in the New City Hall last Thursday evening. The principal business coming up for discussion was the drafting and adoption of a Constitution and By-Laws.

Scott and Anderson, the disreputable hobos taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan last Thursday, were turned loose from the city jail yesterday and admonished to leave town and never return.

NARROW ESCAPE
AT BOYES SPRINGS

Man Essays a High Dive in

Swimming Tank, Strikes on

Head and Nearly Butts

His Brains Out.

A visitor to Boyes Springs nearly lost his life in the swimming tank last Sunday. His name is Peter L. Murphy and he is a resident of Petaluma. Now Mr. Murphy is an expert swimmer and is quite proud of the fact. While performing a number of aquatic stunts in the big swimming tank he essayed a high dive that nearly cost him his life.

Folding his arms and expanding his manly chest Murphy looked majestically down on the admiring crowd below and dived from the second-story balcony of the bath house. He struck head first on the cement bottom of the swimming pool, which was quite shallow at that point, and was all but rendered unconscious. When Murphy rose to the surface he was given immediate assistance by other bathers and landed on terra firma. It was then discovered that his scalp was badly cut and his neck painfully wrenched.

Open Season for Deer

The deer season opened Thursday, it having been definitely settled by the powers that be that be that July 15th and not August 1st was the opening day.

"The Fish and Game Commission with a view of having the vexed question definitely determined as to when under the law the deer season would open, referred the question to Attorney General U. S. Webb for his opinion. It appears from an examination of the various statutes and changes through which Senate Bill No. 64 passed the Legislature at the last session, that it was the intention of the majority of the Legislators that the deer season should extend from August 1 to November 1. The bill as thus proposed to be enacted, however, was not signed by the Governor, but instead he did sign a bill which was enrolled and certified to by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the Assembly, the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the Assembly, and having passed both Houses.

"In a lengthy and comprehensive opinion the Attorney General quotes decisions of the United States Supreme Court and the Supreme Court of this State both of which hold that Courts cannot examine into the proceedings or journals of the Legislative bodies to ascertain their actions, and when a measure is certified to by the duly authorized officers of the Federal Congress, or the State Legislature, and such measure receives the Executive signature, it becomes the law even though such bill did not pass through the various stages of legislation required by law."

In concluding his opinion the Attorney General says: "The act fixing July 15 as the date of the beginning of the open season being the only act to receive executive approval, I advise you that such act is the law now in force."

Commendable Donation

Mrs. Lutgens announces that she will donate half the net proceeds of the ice cream sales in her parlors to the Plaza fund on Wednesday, July 21st. This is very commendable on the part of Mrs. Lutgens, who is one of our most enterprising business women. The Plaza fund needs replenishing for the many contemplated improvements mapped out by the Womens Club, and this being so we trust Mrs. Lutgens' generosity will help the good work along.

New Principal for Sonoma
High School

At a meeting of the Sonoma High School Trustees held last Saturday, B. Painter was elected principal of the school, vice Prof. Russell, resigned. It is to be hoped that under the guidance of Mr. Painter, who is a University of California man, that the school will improve as a preparatory school for a university education. In this respect it hasn't been much the past few years and there is room for improvement. As his assistants the new principal will have Miss Ellen Trueblood, Miss Margaret E. Moore and R. H. Platt, all of whom were re-elected to their old positions.

The President of the High School Board is Robt. Poppe and its secretary is Robt. P. Hill of Eldridge. The directors are Thos. Johnson of Glen Ellen, H. Rubke of Schellville, and Mrs. Young of Baxterville.

Supervisors Accept Bridge

The Board of Supervisors drove down from Santa Rosa on Friday of last week and inspected the new stone bridge recently built by contractor Sherer across Agua Caliente creek opposite lawyer Mathewson's farm. The Supervisors were loud in their praise of the structure and after a thorough examination accepted it on the spot. The bridge, according to experts, will endure for all time.

Theodore Kiser will leave for the coast next week and will remain some time for the benefit of his health which has been quite poor of late.

Howard Gaige was in Sonoma Sunday.

Mrs. L. H. Green was in San Francisco Wednesday.

J. E. Poppe and Master Robert Poppe were in Glen Ellen Monday.

Wm. Trudgen drove over to Napa on business Friday morning.

Mr. Platt, father of R. H. Platt, is quite ill at his home on Broadway.

Elvin Tomasi is here from Oakland visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Tomasi.

Mrs. A. Smith of Santa Barbara is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. Pohley.

Miss Josephine Steiner returned Sunday evening from a visit with friends in the bay cities.

Mrs. Ed. Gies and daughter, Dorothy, of Benicia are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bates.

Ray Poppe is home from his vacation spent at Newcastle with his brother, J. E. Poppe, Jr.

W. O. Hocker and family leave next week for Forestville, where Mr. Hocker was recently appointed principal of the grammar school there.

Miss Bernice Hocker was tendered a farewell party by a number of our local High School students at the home of her parents on Broadway Friday evening.

Vincent Clementi and J. Trippaldi, well-known merchant tailors of San Francisco, were guests at the Nichelini mountain ranch near Agua Caliente several days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kiser of Phoenix, Arizona, visited their aunt, Mrs. A. Kiser of this place, several days this week. Mr. Kiser is an extensive stock-raiser of that territory.

Fred Webber, a summer visitor from the metropolis, who was thrown from a buggy three weeks ago and severely injured, was able to leave Green's Sanitarium one day this week and is now rusticiating at Crane's Hotel in El Verano.

Mrs. Anna Wadsworth King and little daughter, Doris, will leave for Lake Tahoe, where they will be joined by Mr. King, the prominent mining engineer who has been superintending the erection of a big stamp mill at Rawhide, Nevada.

Henry Bill, after a sojourn of a week in this valley, has returned to his home in Napa county. The report that he had accepted the position as foreman of the McIntosh ranch is not true. The position is now ably filled by his nephew, Philip Bill, Jr.

Supervisors Austin, Hart, King and Patterson drove down from Santa Rosa on Friday afternoon of last week and while in town paid this office a friendly visit. They were on a tour of inspection of roads and bridges in Supervisor Hart's district which they found in fine condition.

Mrs. Ninetta Eames of Glen Ellen was a passenger on Tuesday morning's Southern Pacific en route to her home in Glen Ellen. Mrs. Eames is preparing for the homecoming of the Jack Londons, who will leave New Orleans this week after their eventful journey around the world. Mrs. Eames, who is an aunt of Mrs. London, is Jack London's business manager and is affectionately called "mother mine" by the gifted author.

TWO MEN FALL
VICTIMS TO FOOL
HUNTERS GUNS

Opening Day for Deer and Men

May Lead to the Death of

Two Citizens.

L. C. Renshaw of Santa Rosa was mistaken for a deer by A. D. Sund, his companion, while hunting on Sonoma Mountain, a few miles northwest of this place last Thursday morning, and fatally wounded. The bullet tore a great hole in Renshaw's right chest.

The wounded man was got out of the mountains with the greatest of difficulty and taken to Santa Rosa. He now lies at the Mary Jesse hospital in that city hovering between life and death.

In the near vicinity of Skaggs Springs, in the northern part of the county, Weaver Bagley, a Healdsburg high school student, was mistaken for a deer on the opening day and dangerously wounded by an unknown hunter. With two companions he was crawling through some dense brush when a rifle shot was heard and Bagley fell with a bullet through one of his thighs. He was taken to Skaggs Springs for surgical treatment. Bagley will recover if blood poisoning can be averted.

Perazzo Estate

Frank Perazzo, son of the late G. B. Perazzo, who passed away here on July 8th, has filed a petition for the probate of the will of his father. Perazzo left a house and lot on Napa street, valued at $1,000, which is left to the children of deceased who was a widower.

Death at Home

Julia Aello, an inmate of the Sonoma State Home at Eldridge, died at that institution on Saturday last. She was a native of New York and aged 29 years. The funeral took place on Monday from St. Francis Church. Interment was in the Catholic Cemetery.

Will Engage in Business in
Santa Rosa

Chas. B. Allison, for the past four years a resident of Glen Ellen, has purchased Morgan's grocery store in Santa Rosa, and will take possession at once. Mrs. Allison will join her husband shortly and they will make their future home in the City of Roses.

Burned With Gasoline.

Mr. Pierce, who is visiting in Schellville, had his hands and face badly burned, one day last week, while working on a gasoline engine. His injuries were so severe he was brought to town for surgical treatment.

THE CAPITOL STATUE

Heroic Figure That Surmounts the Dome in Washington.

THE MODEL WAS CHANGED.

Jefferson Davis Objected to the Original as Designed by Crawford, and It Was Altered to Symbolize "Armed Liberty," as It Now Stands.

"Armed Liberty," the splendid statue that crowns the dome of the capitol, is by far the most symbolic of all the statues in Washington. Beautiful and reposeful, yet with an air of vigilance, it is perhaps the least appreciated of the city's statues, possibly because of its being placed at such an altitude that it cannot easily be studied. The original plans of the capitol called for a statue to surmount the dome, but no title was then given it, and comparatively few people know the real name of the statue.

Seeking this information, a Post reporter interrogated a number of persons whose daily occupations keep them almost constantly beneath the shadow of the great statue. To the question "What is the name of the statue above the dome of this building?" came these widely different opinions:

"The name of that statue? Why, it's the Goddess of Freedom."

"Yes; I can tell you the name. It is the Goddess of Liberty."

Several declared it to be the statue of Independence. Others said, "It is an Indian woman."

"It is the God of Justice and Freedom," declared a portly man in a tone that defied questioning.

"It represents an American woman, but I am not sure of her name."

"Well, now, I never inquired what lady that statue commemorates," remarked a politician from a not very distant state, "but it is a fine work of art."

"It is a statue of the god of war, Mars."

"Can you tell me something about that statue above the dome?" was asked a man whose knowledge is well known.

"Why, certainly. It is a woman of colonial days. Can't you see the trimming around the mantle and the curls about the face? And the features are delicately modeled. You see, I have studied the model at the museum. It surely is a woman. I think you can safely say it is an American woman."

One who always tries his best to help others said: "Now, all statues, as you know, bear the names of the people they represent, and if you will just step over to the library of congress I think you can easily find some book on statues that will tell you all you want to know. It is a woman. I am sure, so look for the female statues."

A younger member of the house replied to the question about the statue most suavely and confidently. "It is the god of progress; you know his name." Several of the colored men in the various parts of the building were nearly all quite sure it was the Goddess of Freedom. One of them knew the year 1863, when it was placed above the dome, and he affirmed, "It is the Goddess of American Liberty before the war."

"You want to know the name of that statue? Well, just wait a minute, and I will get it for you first hand." And a most accommodating guide passed into the senate chamber. Directly he returned.

"That is a statue of Pocahontas." Every one had a different name for the statue, not one giving the real name, "Armed Liberty."

The statue was modeled by Thomas Crawford, father of the novelist, the late F. Marion Crawford. It was cast at a Maryland foundry. Jefferson Davis was secretary of war when the model was first presented in the war department. The statue then wore a liberty cap and carried a bundle of rods. Davis objected to the liberty cap as being emblematic of the emancipated slaves, while Americans were freeborn. He also thought the bundle of rods, suggesting the functions of the Roman dictator, had lost its symbolic character. Because of these criticisms of Secretary Davis the model was changed, and "Armed Liberty" was evolved.

The statue is nine feet six inches tall and weighs 14,985 pounds. It was put in place on Dec. 2, 1863. The head is thrown back and adorned with eagle's beak and plumes. The right hand rests on a sword, and the left holds an olive branch and a shield. The mantle is gracefully draped and is held by a brooch bearing "U. S." on its face. The helmet is encircled with stars. The supporting globe bears the legend "E Pluribus Unum."—Washington Post.

The Emu's Kick.

An emu can kick as hard as any donkey. The bird stands on one leg and with the other delivers at will a quick and generally very accurate blow. "I never would have believed that a bird had such power," says a recent Australian traveler, "had I not had ocular evidence of it during our trip. After two or three of our men suffered from the terrible kicks of these birds we did not venture near them, but, after running our horses until we got close enough, would bring them down with our rifles. We killed them for their feathers and also for their eggs, but we took good care not to go within kicking distance."

In his better moments starchy Carlyle used to say, "Kindness is the sum of life; the sum to capture and the sword with which to conquer."

Defenseless Man.

A woman writer in one of the magazines says women are sacrificed by thousands in the name of marriage. As for what about the defenseless man who has been torn from his comfortable home and dragged to the altar, Columbia & Co. State.

Optimism.

"Some fish are the built right off my ok," she said. "Cheer up. He'll be all the bigger when you do catch him," he responded encouragingly.—Buffalo Express

The swim is the longest lived of

A Tartar Courtship.

Among the Tehuillan Tartars a curious mode of "popping the question" exists. The Tehuillan bachelor in search of a wife, having filled a brand new pipe with fragrant tobacco, stealthily enters the dwelling of the fair one upon whom he has bestowed his affections, deposits the pipe upon a conspicuous article of furniture and retires on three to some convenient hiding place in the neighborhood, local ly he waits for the fair one to return. When she enters the room, he is ready to pounce upon her, and she, finding the pipe in her possession, is obliged to marry him.

A single glance at the pipe he left behind him enables him to learn the fate of his proposal. If it has been smoked he goes forth an accepted and exultant bridegroom; if not, the offer of his hand and heart has been so irreversibly rejected as not to be even worth a pipe of tobacco.
